dom been a more popular young man in the community.

Mr. Pendexter had been ill less than a business. He has continued there except lady, who has since become Mrs. Pendexter.

ber of the Cornish School Association and Valley two years ago and stock raising

Accidents will Happen

Do you know how much your motor-car is worth to you?

You know what it cost, and you can make a reasonably close estimate of its depreciation, but suppose your car is damaged, stolen, or destroyed, WHAT THEN? Will it be a partial or total loss?

Every day you read of cars being stolen from garages or while standing in the street. Grave danger of fire or explosion always exists where gasoline is used. Collisions are of every day occurrence, and cannot always be prevented, even by careful driving. YOU may be the next to suffer loss—you cannot tell.

Which is wiser—to take the risk yourself, or to shift the responsibility upon those whose business it is to assume such risks?

We will insure your car against Fire, Theft, Personal Liability, Property Damage, Collision or the hazards of transportation.

Note the Model Number, Make and Model Year of your car and mail to us to-day and we will tell you how you can estimate the exact value of your car at any time, whether it be standing safely in your Garage or lying by the roadside, a piece of tangled JUNK.

Our grandmothers know that millions of people, children and adults, have worms, either in stomach or bowels. This trouble is just as common now as it ever was, but people don't know it. Ask Gran'ma—she knows.

Roxbury, (Mass.) Roxbury, Me., says, "I have always used your Dr. Tru's Blisters for my children and they are all healthy and well today."

I put great faith in your medicine and said she could not live until morning and I took her to the drug store, got a bottle of Dr. Tru's Blisters, was so excited I gave her half of the bottle at once and at night I gave her the other half. I thought it's either kill or cure for the doctor says she is dying any way, but she did not die. She went to sleep, she passed two worms, red in color, six inches long. The doctor came to see if she was dead, but he ran out pretty quick as she must and now she has a baby girl of her own, seven months old, who is also using the Blisters.

Take Dr. Tru's Blisters—give it to your children. Great Family Laxative and Worm Expeller.

Bertrum G. McIntire's Lumber Operations

Hon. B. G. McIntire of Norway is at present one of the largest shippers from this station having finished probably the most extensive lumber operation ever carried on in Waterford, his native town. During the past year and a half some thing like two million feet of pine from the Pride Bros., one hundred acre lot along Crooked river has been logged. Another large parcel on the north shore of Pappoose Pond has produced more than three quarters of a million.

The Curtis mill near the Pride lot and Durgin mill at Bethel town, employing altogether some thirty men have been driven to capacity during the past winter. Box boards and plank have been turned out from the logs until several acres covered with neatly stacked lumber piles are a sight to gladden the heart of an enterprising timber merchant.

Mr. McIntire has not confined his activities wholly to pine, spruce and fir. The white birch industry appealed so strongly to his business sense that more than 150 cords has been converted into well known McIntire estates in Waterford. Large sums have been paid his neighbors for birch, and another townsmen, Harry Brown is converting all this stock into spools for use in America and across the water.

Three acres covered with board piles is an unusual sight about this section and it has proved an attractive landmark. Just across the Norway line, on the interval along Crooked river, on the bridge to reduce the fire risk an open field was leased with the river between the lumber country on all sides. It might be interesting to note that Alfred Gagne is responsible for the ship-shape appearance of the yard. He stacked every board condition during the winter being favorable, he worked every day and did a lumber piled eight or nine feet high is a breaker.

Bertrum G. McIntire has been interested in timber lands many years, and with his brother, Leslie McIntire carried along principally buying and selling until some twelve years ago. At that time the present lumber merchant realized the possibilities from getting into the trade on the ground floor and commenced logging from the stump on a comparatively large scale. A strictly business base was established on the start which in a large measure accounts for his success.

McIntire has every minute detail worked out in advance of any drive into the forest timber, so can figure the out come with a reasonable degree of certainty. He is no plunger. Luck or chance does not steer the car in these ventures, it is experience and knowing the way to handle men. This is the formula Mr. McIntire would give any man expecting to create a successful business.

of the world's magic and only genuine corn-peeler "Gets-It." Then and then only, will you be sure that your corn will loosen from your foot so that you can peel it right off. Take no chances of continued pain, itching, swelling, and soreness—why use greasy, irritating salves, plasters that shift and press into the corn, and "diggers" that make corns bleed, always sure "Gets-It." Use painless, "Gets-It." Millions have tried and "Gets-It" for years. It never fails. Back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Mailed by E. TO OUR RETURNED SOLDIERS

"The axe is laid at the root of the tree." Peace after conflict! How sweet sounds the word.

The war now is ended; sheathed be every sword. Rest now, oh, ye weary, your work was well done!

Pull off now your helmet, you soon can go home. Released now the tension, the strain it is o'er, You'll return to the places that have known you before.

Quiet and comfort will seem good to you After terrors and hardships that you have gone through.

But hark! In the homeland do you hear the cry: "Bolshevism is coming, lawbreakers must die." The sword of the Kaiser you've torn from his hand.

But the spirit of plunder spreads over the land. It says "None shall be rich, while workers are poor."

We'll rule or we'll ruin, of that be you sure." Ah, here is a foe at our very own door, A foe with the spirit you've met oft before.

These gas is most deadly, is spread with the hand. Not with helmet and sword, nor fixed bayonet, Not with tanks or machine guns or such war assets, Shall you meet these usurpers who rise in our land.

Must stand. Be with weapons to quell them, you surely must stand. The same old spirit, the same powerful will, To overthrow evil, must dwell in you still.

A victorious army returns to your homes, Though thousands have fallen, yet victory comes.

But the war against evil is still on our shore, We must fight for our homes as we've fought before. We must go over the top that right shall prevail.

With might, mind and strength all evil assail.

MRS. E. A. HARRIS

THE WHY OF INCREASED PRICES

Food prices are still slowly climbing and are beyond what they were at this time last year when war was raging at its maximum. The speed of the increase is not so great as during the early part of the war but it looks as if the maximum was still some distance in the future. While this condition exists there can be no hope of reduced wages or costs of production in any line of trade. This week's Bradstreet's number based on prices per pound of thirty-one articles used for food is $4.96, compared with $4.94 last week and $4.41 for this week ending May 3, 1918. This week's number increases four-tenths of 1 per cent over last week and 12.4 per cent over the like week last year, while it is 2.1 per cent down from the top of November.

The high cost of the 75 per cent of our grub that we pay freight for, comes from places far from the Pine Tree State.

When Maine grown food is sold to Maine people through Maine Markets, you will see prices more reasonable and the farmer will be happier than the city man, the farmer's profits can be still higher than it is at present and with lower prices to the consumer; if, for instance, we eliminate such expensive practice as selling the apples we grow in Liverpool, and buying the apples we eat in Oregon. Looks as if it was about time we got busy pulling with the Maine League (State Agricultural and Industrial League) to find Maine Markets for Maine Products.

FOOD SELECTION FOR THE HOME.

The most important daily incident of the housekeeper's routine is the selection and preparation of food for her family. It is a tribute to her intelligence and industry if her husband goes out to his work and her children to their school well nourished and satisfied. In order to bring this about she must know something of the proper combination of foods. The meals served every day should contain a proportion of each of the following groups of foods:

1. Fruits and vegetables. These mineral substances of great value.

2. Meats and meat substances such as poultry, fish, bean, eggs, milk and cheese.

PRIVATE MEANNESS A PUBLIC BURDEN

Generosity is seldom rewarded according to its deserts, neither do selfishness and greed invariably get what should properly come to them. If we could get our exact justice between the generous and the selfish the latter would, for the most part, disappear, as few would be obdurate enough to hold out against the scorn and contempt of their fellow townsmen.

No man is to be blamed for seeking the well being of himself and family, nor for making his own enterprise the object of his chief endeavor. But the man, living in a civilized community, depending largely upon its development for his own prosperity, who will assume no part of the public burden, very properly arouses indignation. Willing to see others work for the advancement of the town he lives in, yet lending no hand himself; willing to share in the prosperity earned by others, but unwilling to aid in bringing it about!

Such a one is a detriment and scourge to any town. Enough of them would re-establish wildness and barbarism. One such citizen is sufficient to dishearten fifty others.

It is up to us all, not only to be public spirited ourselves but to appreciate and encourage public spirit in others. Those who assume public tasks cheerfully, do not seek for praise, although for the most part they are rather pleased that people should know and appreciate their work. Those who avoid every burden not connected with their own narrow purposes are more or less callous to public opinion, but the meanness of them have some little fear of detection and more or less regard for what is thought of them. In most cases the one hope of reform is in making them feel the weight of public condemnation.

MEANING OF THE WEDDING RING

The use of a ring as a pledge is of very remote origin. It will be recalled by students of the Bible that Pharaoh took from his right hand a ring and placed it on Joseph's as a sign that he had set Joseph over all the lands of Egypt. The Egyptian marriage service included the ring, and the wearing of it gave the wife the right to issue orders in her husband's name.

Among the Anglo Saxons the bridegroom, at the time of the betrothal, gave the bride a number of gifts as a pledge or "well" from which comes the word "wedding." The gifts included a ring, which was placed on the girl's right hand. This was changed to the left hand at the marriage ceremony, the bridegroom putting the ring first on the thumb, then on the first finger and then on the second finger. This was to signify the trinity. Finally the ring was placed on the bride's third finger, as a reminder that, next to God, her duty was to her husband.
